President's Message from Mary Baldelli

Spring at last!

A time to anticipate and to plan, a time to create and to develop, and a time to reach out and to nourish. Each spring we embrace the beauty of nature as it unfolds before us and we are ready to tackle new challenges. I look forward to welcoming new members and to encourage others to step up and share your energy and ideas with our group.

Last month we were treated to a wonderful presentation on “Stress Management” by Kathleen Gill. She has ongoing workshops and energy clinics available at Causeway Chiropractic and I encourage you to check them out.

Make sure you come to hear our own Gina Dinkey give her presentation on How HP is Helping Women in the Technological Workforce in April! Please arrive a little early, bring your business cards and information, and network with us before the meeting.

Wishing you a beautiful Easter and Passover.
Be well and see you April 8.

Please RSVP to info@bpwsoc.org for this meeting and if present, your name will be entered in this month's door prize.

money to a friend or family member for free.

PayPal allows you to send money to anyone, even if they do not have a PayPal account. The sender must have an account that is linked to a bank account. You can also have it linked to credit cards. But, if you use a credit card, then you will be charged a fee of 2.9% plus $0.30 per transaction and the sender can decide who pays the fee (therefore, if you discuss this with the person you are sending money to first, you may agree to charge the recipient the fee). I feel that if I am paying you with my credit card, I am the one who should pay the fee. Another example, if I am sending you money for something that you purchased for me (like concert tickets) or a loan to me (split the check at dinner), it is still my responsibility to pay the fee (if I choose to use a credit card). But, again, if I send the money to you direct from my bank account, it is totally free. And this is a great way to accomplish transactions without always having cash on you.

On the other hand, if we are talking business - you can send me money for something that you are buying from me or I am selling to you (known as goods and services), and I, the merchant, (in my opinion) should pay the fee. This fee would basically be the same as if I went to a store and used my Visa card to purchase something - I pay the price as listed and the merchant has fees to pay to the credit card or bank issuing the resources to provide this service. The fees are 2.9% + $.030 per transaction or if you have a PayPal card reader (this is the swipe device that you can plug into your smart phone), then the fee is 2.7% or, be careful - if you manually enter the credit card # it becomes 3.5% plus $0.15 for the manually entered transaction.

Again, any fees can be discussed and agreed upon through the parties making the transaction.

Thank you, Lisa Gambino
